Academy Public Charter School

“Where learning leads to endless opportunity and infinite worth”

Core Value Focus: 'Ohana

The word 'ohana is rooted in the taro plant -- 'oha-ana: 'ohā is the shoot, the part of the taro plant which is cut from the plant and planted to become the next generation; ana is a conjunctive word connoting regeneration or procreation. Procreation and regeneration carried important implications for Polynesians, and Hawaiians think of kalo(taro) as the older sibling of man.

Today, 'ohana includes all who are brought into the family group. Your 'ohana nourishes you. There are even hānai (adopt, nourish) relationships which feed a person both physically and spiritually. In turn, you share in the responsibilities of your 'ohana's kuleana (work, responsibility, function). It's a give and take. There's a saying: “Prepare for the seven generations ahead.” That means do your work so that those seven generations from now can benefit. People in Hawai'i. even non-Hawaiians, accept that.
